Bruin Capital Announces New $1 Billion Strategic Partnership to Create Global Sports Platform

BACKED BY 26NORTH, TJC AND OTHER PARTNERS, BRUIN ESTABLISHES LATEST PLATFORM
TO BACK, BUILD, AND SCALE BUSINESSES ACROSS THE GLOBAL SPORTS ECONOMY

NEW YORK, NY — [January 8, 2026] — Bruin Capital ("Bruin") today announced the creation of a new platform with affiliates of 26North Private Equity ("26North"), TJC LP ("TJC"), and select other partners, capitalized with $1 billion to acquire, support, and grow a diversified collection of market-leading businesses across the global sports ecosystem.

This new alliance reflects the strong market validation of Bruin's specialist strategy, which focuses on "second-level enablers" – the companies that develop and provide the technology, data, media, and commercial services essential to teams, leagues, federations, rights owners, and others. These "second-level enablers" are high-growth, innovative companies that underpin the sports industry's rapid expansion.

With access to 26North's extensive resources, the institutional capabilities of longtime partner TJC, and support from all partners, this new Bruin platform offers a deeply differentiated growth engine for founders and the new wave of companies transforming the sports industry operating model.

It builds on Bruin's track record of successfully identifying and scaling enterprises powering the industry's transformation. Underpinning this strategy is Bruin's unique platform-based structure, which allows for long-term ownership, multi-stage growth, and flexible liquidity pathways, setting the firm apart from traditional fixed-term funds.

Founded in 2015 by George Pyne, Bruin is the only firm dedicated exclusively to the global middle-market of sports. Over the last decade, Bruin has scaled multiple, successively larger platforms with more than $2 billion of capital. Along the way, Bruin has consistently delivered meaningful value creation, including the 2024 sale of Two Circles, the international sports marketing and analytics firm; the growth and exit of Deltatre, a leader in digital, streaming, and broadcast technology; and its influential early investment in On Location Experiences, which grew into a premier global hospitality and live-events business. These outcomes demonstrate an ability to maximize value by creating high-demand platforms that attract premium buyers on flexible timelines, rather than being constrained by traditional fund timelines.

Said Pyne: “I am incredibly proud of the partnership with Josh Harris, my longtime collaborator Rich Caputo, and our entire investor group, whose shared vision for our unique thesis has made this milestone possible. While we are proud of what Bruin has achieved over the last decade, I am even more excited about the road ahead; with this unrivaled scale of resources and expertise, we can be even more creative in building the essential companies that underpin the global sports operating system. This is the most ambitious chapter in our history, and we remain deeply committed to scaling the second-level enablers that drive the industry’s real value and long-term transformation.”

Mark Weinberg, 26North’s Head of Private Equity, said: “This platform harnesses Bruin’s global reach and deep relationships across sports, alongside the capital, experience, and networks of 26North, TJC, and our other partners. This collaboration gives the platform the scale and flexibility to engage with founders and management teams in ways few investors can and builds on 26North’s strategy of investing in the infrastructure underpinning the growth of global sports.”

Rich Caputo, TJC Chairman and Chief Executive Partner, added: “Our relationship with Bruin is rooted in a shared conviction that sports is a durable, high-growth global asset class. Bruin’s disciplined approach, international network, and long-duration investment model make them an exceptional partner for building value over time.”

All of this comes at a time when the global sports industry continues to evolve into a sophisticated, high-growth sector. Analysts estimate the worldwide sports market now exceeds $500 billion in annual revenues, with international media rights surpassing $60 billion. Franchise valuations across major leagues have risen more than 300% in the past decade, while institutional investment in sports has quadrupled. Investors are increasingly focused on scalable technologies, data infrastructure, and commercial services surrounding sport—precisely the areas where Bruin has built its expertise, platforms, and long-term strategy.
